Not a Threat—But Languid Legislators. The Ten Minute Egg. A Question of Law.

By W. A. de GRAYES

In the language of the street Premier Broderick "slipped on the ice" on the boys down under the bill on Friday. After keeping the legislature busy all afternoon and evening, the Premier, who was estimated to have nearly midnight, and then being confronted with a motion on the order paper calling for Saturday afternoon session, the Premier said in words on Friday afternoon when the motion was being passed on, and asked that it be left until the Friday night session.

Mr. George Henry was the messenger chosen by the Premier to indicate that the motion should stand over, and when he brought the motion down, the Premier, who was estimated to have nearly midnight, and then being confronted with a motion on the order paper calling for Saturday afternoon session, the Premier said in words on Friday afternoon when the motion was being passed on, and asked that it be left until the Friday night session.

Mr. Broderick was very emphatic in his statements. The Premier, however, was not so emphatic. ## DOROTHY DIX

Dear Miss Dix—Mother has been a widow for several years and, as she is very good-looking, intelligent and well-to-do financially, she has had many offers of marriage. She now has one especially comfortable offer, but it is just comfortable and she is very doubtful about whether to accept it or not, or to wait for some one who can give her a beautiful home, nice things, travel, etc. What do you think?

A DAUGHTER.

Answer: Personally, I do not see why any woman ever marries under any circumstances unless she is so much in love with a man that she feels that life without him will be dull and sad in her death.

I think that the woman who marries just to get a good-looking man, a very handsome man, and that she would find it easier to earn her own bread and butter in a more or less office than by having to work for a living in some man's kitchen and having to put up with his whims and tempers besides.

Nothing but love justifies marriage. Nothing but love makes matrimony endurable. It takes love to take the bitterness from the sacrifices that marriage imposes upon a woman. It takes love to make her dependence sweet. It takes love to make her see a commonplace man as a perpetual figure of romance. It takes love to put joy and thrill into going over and over again the noxious tasks of domestic life.

Hence, if a woman does not love her husband, marriage to her is a nightmare, a dreary treadmill in which she treads the daily round chained to a companion who hurls her to death and whose every act and word irritates her almost to madness.

So my advice to your mother is not to marry any man unless she is so enamored of him that she feels that she cannot exist without him. As she is sitting pretty, why risk the happiness she has? She has her children for company. She has enough money on which to live comfortably. She has perfect liberty to do as she pleases. She doesn't have to consult any man's pleasure nor put up with any man's disposition, and, so it seems to me, that she will be a wise dame if she lets well enough alone.

As for waiting until some man comes along who can give her everything that she desires, that's taking a long shot on a good thing. Fairly likely to fall on some pretty young girl and not on a widow with half-grown children. The men who court widows generally have an eye on the lady's pocketbook instead of their having fair wallets of their own to offer.

Nor, even if a man can give her a fine house and beautiful clothes and travel, will these make her happiness. That depends altogether on her feelings inside. Therefore, I advise her to wait until she has a "just comfortable" offer, but to wait until she gets her big chance to marry some one who can give her his heart. Don't consider what else he can give her so long as he gives her his heart.

DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix—I feel that my husband is going ahead of me. He has achieved much success in business, and through the association with larger firms and the money he has won, he is now a millionaire. He has the home and the children has kept me at a standstill. I love him dearly and he would not let me go. He is a handsome man, but I am willing to do anything to keep step with him. How can I?

MRS. A.

Answer: You are a wise woman, Mrs. A., to realize that you must keep up with your husband or lose him. For a man's success in business takes him into a world where he is brought in contact with educated and cultivated and worldly-wise people, and if his wife cannot hold her own among these, if she is dull and stupid and awkward, her husband is ashamed of her and finds some pretext for leaving her at home.

The successful man also meets brilliant and beautiful and exquisitely groomed women, and when he contrasts the dowdy-looking little hen on the home with these strutting peacocks he is likely to forget that it was to the hen's industrious scratching that he owes his start in life and much that he has achieved. So you do well to have the courage to face the situation and see that if you are to keep up with your husband in the race you will have to speed up.

My advice to you is to sit down and have a heart-to-heart session with yourself and determine wherein you fail and what you most need to know. Perhaps you are ignorant of your grammar and pronunciation. Perhaps you were reared in a home where food was food and the only table etiquette consisted in drinking it out fairly among hungry children. Perhaps you have read little.

Don't be too proud or too vain to admit to yourself your shortcomings. Then go secretly to some educated and cultivated woman who has had the social advantages that you have lacked and get her to give you lessons in table etiquette, in voice culture and to correct your grammar and pronunciation.

In every community there are women who, as the phrase goes, "have seen better days," and who would be glad to earn money by taking such a pupil. And if you could get some such lady to be your companion for even a few months you would find yourself perfectly at ease in any company.

Then read, read! Read the new books, the magazines, the newspapers, so that you can discuss intelligently any question that comes up.

This will not only save you from being a dummy in society but make you an interesting companion to your husband at home.

Finally, and this is very important, improve your clothes. Spend money in the beauty parlor. Go to some good dressmaker and put yourself in her hands and let her pick your clothes for you. Don't trust your own taste. Take the opinion of an expert.

To these things and you will have no difficulty keeping up with your husband.

DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix—I am a married man with two children. All in the world my wife can do is to go to dance and parties. She wastes the babies shamefully. I married when I was 16 years of age and my wife was 15. We have been married about five years. My wife will not do her duty and the only thing I can do is to divorce her, but I do not want to do that because of the children. Is there no way that she can be compelled to stay at home?

A DISGUSTED HUSBAND.

Answer: You poor little kiddy! What a pelf you are paying for the folly of a too-early marriage. Can't you see that nothing is the matter with your wife except that she is just a young girl with a young girl's desire for pleasure and romance? Why, she's only 18 now, and if you can only have a little patience with her, in a year or two she will get tired of her parties and be ready to settle down.

But I'm sorry for you, poor, care-burdened husband of 21! What a crime it is that the law allows children to wreck their lives by these premature marriages.

DOROTHY DIX.

Business Before Sport.

The Dominion Government is considering a request for a grant of unusual proportions to make possible the sending of a large number of Canadian athletes to Amsterdam next year to compete in the Olympic games. Little fault will be found if the request is complied with so long as the amount is within reason. But just at present a deal more interest would be aroused in the West if it were announced that the Government was considering the reversal of the decision to stop loaning pure bred bulls to settlers in remote parts of the country.

Athletes are all right, but the cattle industry is one which the Dominion cannot afford to neglect. And about the surest way to place that industry under a handicap is to make it more difficult for farmers to improve their stock. While the thought on the part of Canadian cattle has been to export to the other side of the ocean there is no use supposing that the Canadian farmer can get rich rearing scrub steers. And that is the reason that farmers in new and far out settlements will have to raise if the bullion policy is not continued.

To Survey Hudson Straits.

Doubt about the usefulness of the Hudson Bay route as an outlet for western grain is occasioned by uncertainty as to the navigability of the Hudson straits. The latter can be traversed by ships for three or four months in every summer season. It is open for the corresponding period in the unknown factor.

To settle that point preparations are being made for a study of the conditions in the straits during the summer months.

The department of Marine is to establish two wireless stations, at each end of the waterway. Airplanes will maintain a daily patrol over the straits, taking photographs, noting the wind, and accumulating information of all kinds bearing on the question of navigation.

By the end of the season, a complete record will thus have been made of conditions in the straits for one summer.

That will not be an infallible guide as to conditions which may be looked for every summer. But it will be a start toward securing such information through a course of years. The only fault that can be found with the survey is that it should have been instituted years ago. Had there been the navigability of the straits, and therefore the practicability of the Hudson Bay route for grain export, would have been settled definitely one way or the other.

The failure to start so obviously necessary a survey long ago is another evidence of the curiously half-hearted and haphazard way in which the opening up of the north-western route has been muddled along. The railway was started before it was known with certainty where it ought to end, or whether, when it got there, what could be shipped via the bay and straits in quantities sufficient to make the enterprise justify itself. It is too late now to mend that mistake.

It is surely welcome the indication that investigation is to take the place of guess-work hereafter in relation to the whole project.

The Provincial Railways.

More than a half million dollars is asked by the Provincial Department of Railways for "construction, operation and maintenance" of the E. D. and B. C. railway and the Central Canada railway during the coming year.

Less than one hundred thousand dollars is being asked for "construction, operation and maintenance" of the Lacombe and Northwestern Railway.

The E. D. and B. C. and the Central Canada railways were "constructed" years ago. The Lacombe and Northwestern Railway is under "construction" now. The figures would suggest the reverse condition.

Heavy expenditures are to be necessary to re-condition the E. D. and B. C. and the Central Canada railways, because the C. P. R. neglected to spend sufficient money to maintain the physical fitness of the railways over which it held only a five year lease.

That illustrates the folly of leasing a railway for a short term. It equally illustrates the mistake of leasing a railway for a long term; thereby leaving for a good long term; thereby leaving for a good long term; thereby leaving for a good long term.

The C. P. R. provide the money for the "construction, operation and maintenance" of the north-western lines.

The C. P. R. offer $250,000 a year for the privilege of operating the E. D. and B. C. and the Central Canada railways, for a further term. If the representatives of the C. P. R. at the present condition of those roads, the C. P. R. could not have operated them without spending the money which the Government is going to spend to put them in proper operating condition.

The Government seems to have stepped into the picture just in time to save the C. P. R. from having to spend a few hundred thousand dollars in reconditioning the north-western

MOOSE JAW, March 24.—The first annual convention of the recently incorporated United Farmer of Canada, Saskatchewan, section

The following hours of the assembly found the delegates working conscientiously to complete a program of business which was the subject of a preliminary crowded session on the agenda.

Much on Resolutions

A great volume of resolutions was assigned to the staff, while others of a contentious nature were referred to the executive committee. The day passed upon with the minimum of discussion.

Attempt to Bring to a Close

An attempt to bring the convention to a close by a declaration of political action before the convention was made by the chair, but this was met with a strong declaration the discussion was out of order. It was declared that the convention was not to be a political arena and that the right be given to the district conventions to debate the merits of the various popular measures.

London warranted that the exacting standards of the organization's policy should be authorized by the members of the organization upon this matter. Officials of the organization declined to confirm this report.

British Mystery Racing Car Brought to United States to Smash Speed Records

There is a first sketch made public in Canada showing the construction of the English "Mystery SR" racer that has been designed to go 220 miles an hour. The car has been brought to the United States for a try-out along the coast of the Atlantic. It is a sleek, low-slung, wide stretch of hard-pneumatics 68 inches wide and about seven miles long.

The racer is a 1,000-horsepower affair costing $100,000 and built with two two-cylinder engines joined by a shaft. It is the product of the famous St. Louis engineer, Harry Miller.

Major H. O. D. Scragare, its driver, is an American-born English racer who has won several speed medals and has broken several records.

The car is like a huge cigar painted red. It is 22 feet long and 6 feet wide and weighs more than 1,000 pounds. The costume men are four, and the goggles are made of a mixture of glass and a half-mile long.

The tires are of special design and have to be attached by some special arrangement to keep them on at high speeds. The centre of gravity had to be shifted when it was found the car failed to rise off the ground when the car went around corners.

Although the body is aluminum, the chassis is made of heavy steel girders to resist the tremendous strain of speed and wind.

"The engine," says the inventor, "is a V-8 type. It is said also to reach 75 miles an hour in low gear and 140 miles an hour in second gear."

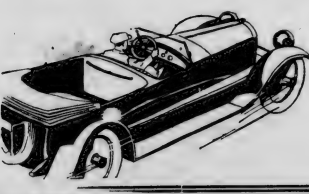

Everything must be perfect on this car, for there can be no allowance for error. A single misfire or a slight vibration would mean disaster. In one second for the driver's hand to act on a message from the brain. In that time this car, going at the rate of 200 miles an hour, would travel 40 yards.

This car will cost $100,000. The first try-out on Tuesday and on Thursday, it is estimated, 196-51 miles per hour.

"New long will this battery last?" is one of the most frequent questions asked by motorists who are owners of the latest Willard station car. The answer is simple—just ask your doctor, how long the boy who lives at 100 West Madison street will live. He would tell you that if the boy lived according to the Willard's instructions he would live a long time having the specialist on the human body back of him—your Willard's battery.

Experts Cannot Tell

No even trained specialists cannot tell with any reasonable assurance as to how long a battery will last. In fact, there are instances of batteries lasting for ten years or more.

According to officials of the Willard Battery Co., it is impossible to predict, though, the life of a battery is determined by its construction, its use, care and quality of the latter itself.

A motorist making unusual demands upon the battery will probably find it wears out correspondingly; but all other things being equal the average driver can expect satisfactory service. Consequently cost per mile in such a case is as fair a basis for comparison as any.
